INTERACTIVE PANEL DISCUSSION FORMAT

This important seminar brings building inspectors, code enforcement officers and law enforcement professionals together with experts from social services and medical care to share their experiences and expertise in handling situations where individuals who are affected by Obsessive Compulsive disorder know as Hoarding impact themselves, others, and the community they live in.

Hoarding often goes unnoticed by the community for many years until it creates an impact due to an excessive accumulation of material such as junk and debris, even garbage in a person's home or on their property. Veteran field investigators realize the difficulty in dealing with individuals afflicted with this disorder and many times a home is termed a "Garbage House". Please join your fellow professionals and learn how you can make a difference.
